The Lowdown on Genealogy Research

GLENDALÉ, Ariz. – “Where did I come from?” That is a frequently heard question. Besides the birds and the bees, people want to know about their heritage. Who were their forbearers and what were their countries of origin?

Glendale Main Library, 5959 W. Brown St., will be offering two programs to help fledgling genealogy researchers master the basics of tracing their roots. Lorin Lindsay, Genealogy Librarian at the Arizona State Library, Archives and Public Records, will present:

- “Genealogy 101: How to Start Your Genealogical Research” – 9 a.m. on Friday, November 3 in the computer lab. What do you remember about your relatives? What family records do you have? What memories do you have while looking at family pictures? The first step is to start asking your relatives lots of questions, such as birth, marriage and death dates.
- “Genealogy Research Using the Internet” – 9 a.m. on Friday, December 1 in the computer lab. The Internet explosion provides many genealogical sites. The question is where do you start and how do you know that you can trust the information? The class includes how to use the databases Ancestry Plus and Heritage Quest.

Space is limited. Call 623-930-3573 to register for these free classes.
